The horse auction which took place here last Monday drew a large crowd o town, and the twenty-eight animals ffered were sidd in less than three hours. While the stock was all small. it nevertheless brought big prices, the horses were not broken even to the halter and the purchasers had a lively time in getting their stock home. The eagerness with which the horses were aid for and the prices they brought was a revelation to those not familiar with the advance in the price of horses or the last few years. Four or live year-190 such horses as were sold here Monlay for fancy prices would have gone seeging for buyerent half the figure. A fairly good horse is worth a hundred collars nowadays, and one need not heatlong for a buyer at that price.
